

Abstract

A method for polling a plurality of wireless modems from a base station in which, when a first modem is about to be polled, data that is ready to sent to a second modem is included in the poll sent to the first modem. The poll includes an indication that the data is intended for the second modem.

0399441-020001